'HOT OIL' TRAP TO STOP A 'RACKET'!

Recently a group of seven sober-faced men sat down at a table in the little town of Kilgore, Texas. Three were members of the Federal Trade Board. Three belonged to the State Tenders Board. The seventh represented the Texas Railroad Commission, which, among other jobs regulates the state's vast oil industry.

The seven men came together because one of the country's most difficult industrial problems had reached a crucial point. The problem was that of "hot oil"—and it was boiling more merrily than at any time in the past.

It is said that the "hot oil" men are really worried now—if this state-federal effort succeeds, it is obvious that a very profitable racket will be nipped in the bud.

While, at this writing, the gasoline war is still raging, it looks as if it won't be long before all is again quiet on the petroleum front.

Pioneer Dies

Fifteen minutes before he died at 4 o'clock the morning of Nov. 11, inst., Amel Lundberg, 55, walked across a room at his late residence 7 miles south of Ignacio, Colo., to get a drink of water. He had been ill a long time with Miners consumption, contracted during the 30 years he followed mining in the Red Mountain district in Colorado.

Quitting mining in 1916, the late Mr. Lundberg located on a dry ranch south of Ignacio, consisting of several hundred acres which he owned unincumbered at the time of his death.

At the time of his death his wife was critically ill and could not attend the funeral in Ignacio last Tuesday.

He was born in Galesburg, Ill., Dec. 29, 1879. He is survived by his widow, two brothers and one sister. One of the brothers was with him when he died and is now taking care of Mrs. Lundberg and the property until her health is restored.

Mr. Lundberg was one of La Plata County's most highly esteemed citizens.

John Lauten Succumbs

John Lauten, 67 year old resident of Oxford, Colo., passed away at 6:30 Monday evening, Nov. 12.

The deceased was born August 9, 1867, at Peoria, Ill., he followed farming all his life, moving to the Oxford section in 1907 where he purchased a ranch.

He is survived by his wife, Marguerite E. Lauten; one son,

Local Items

Harry McJunkin, Ignacio, is one of 310 students employed by FERA projects at the University of Colorado this year. FERA work includes typing and stenographic assistance in faculty offices, preparation of bibliographies for classroom use, translation of foreign reference books into English, scientific research, and work on the campus. Ninety freshman are beautifying and developing the campus by landscaping grounds around the new women's dormitory and preparing new athletic fields.

Workers average 50 hours a month, for which they are paid about $15.

Shipping Turkeys

The San Juan Basin Turkey Growers' Association is loading turkeys at Durango and Allison, for shipment to the Northwestern Turkey Growers' Association at New York City, Tuesday, and probably will not have the turkeys loaded before noon Thursday.

Tuesday a car of turkeys was loaded by the association at Mancos, and one car was loaded at Aztec.

Officials of the association stated this afternoon that a total of five or six carloads will be shipped for the Thanksgiving market from the San Juan Basin.

The amount to be received could not be stated, but the turkeys will net between $30,000 and $35,000, it was estimated.

The Spanish Main

Cartagena (correctly pronounced Kar-ta-hay-na, accent on the third syllable), the South American city, was at one time the most important city on the Spanish Main, writes G. R. Turner in the Kansas City Times. In this connection it should be remembered that "Main" is merely a contraction of "mainland" and is improperly applied to the Caribbean sea in such expressions as "sailing the Spanish Main." The original use of the term was to distinguish the Spanish possessions on the northern coast of the South American mainland from the insular possessions of Spain in the Caribbean sea.

Meaning of Schwarzwald

Schwarzwald is German for Black Forest; a mountainous region in southwestern Germany and a favorite resort for tourists. It embraces an area of some 1,800 square miles and is about 100 miles long and from 10 to 20 wide. It belies its title and is not all wooded but it does derive its name from the dark hue of the firs that grow in the region.—Pathfinder Magazine.

Mackinac Island

The Indians named Mackinac Island Michilimackinac, meaning "Great Turtle." They reckoned it the abiding place of spirits and left many a peace offering there in the calcareous rock caves. It was here that Schoolcraft wrote his legend of Hiawatha, afterward made into a poem by Longfellow.

"The Devil's Advocate"

"The Devil's advocate" is any carpenter or adverse critic. The advocatus diaboli is a person appointed to contest the claims of a candidate for canonization before a papal court. He presents what he can against the candidate, while the advocatus dei says all he can in favor of the proposal.

Sound From Earthquake

An earthquake of some intensity is accompanied by sound. This is variously described as resembling thunder, roar of artillery or crashing glass. It is actually a low-pitched rumbling caused by vibratory motion of the air in sympathy with the ground waves.

The Name "Raven"

The name raven is now generally believed to have its source in the ancient verb to raven, tear, despoil, thus identifying this ominous bird with the scenes of battle, rapine and death with which our ancestors were sadly familiar not so many centuries ago.

Only One Pearl Lagoon

Only one pearl lagoon within the territory of the United States has been found, and this is a small island, some 1,200 miles northwest of the city of Honolulu. This is under the jurisdiction of the United States Bureau of Fisheries.

First Shoes

Thomas Beard brought to this country hides in 1629 and began the manufacture of shoes. This remained a hand process entirely until about 1850, when the first machinery was introduced.

"Dry" Wine

The word "dry," as applied to wine, means the opposite of sweet, without, however, meaning sour. In other words, dry wine is wine having a much lower sugar content than sweet wine.

Find Lima Older Than Curzo

Lima is older than Curzo, according to recent discoveries. Ruins undoubtedly pre-Inca, tell of a civilization 300 years older, equal to that which the Spaniards found in 1534.

Hard to Find

"A man who speaks only the truth," said Hi Ho, the sage of Chinatown, "must often be content to remain silent for a long time until he searches it out."
